Dedication

This issue of
The Four Corners
is respectfully dedicated to our superintendent and beloved friend,

Frank H. B. Heald

A friend to Truth, of soul sincere,
In action faithful and in honor clear;
Who broke no promise, served no private end,
Who gained no title, and who lost no friend;
Ennobled by himself, by all approved,
And held in deep regard by all he loved."

THE FOUR CORNERS

Volume XX

APRIL, 1931

Number 1

GROWTH OF THE "FOUR CORNERS"

Looking through the earlier editions of THE FOUR CORNERS, one discovers that our year book has been greatly and steadily improving.

Between the years of 1912 and 1931 the following improvements have been made: We have a larger editorial department; the literary department consists of stories, essays, ballads, poems and plays; a more complete and more interesting alumni department has resulted through the addition of special topics, such as Marriages, Births, Deaths, and Items of Interest; we have a much larger athletic department, including records of boys' and girls' basketball, boys' indoor and outdoor track, and rifle-shooting; our exchange department, which is larger, includes our comments on the year books of other schools, and their comments on THE FOUR CORNERS. In these comments, helpful suggestions are offered. Our local department is larger and more interesting. One of the most outstanding improvements in the recent numbers is the abundant use of cuts. The Senior Periscope is a great improvement in our year book. Pictures of the athletic teams, snapshots, and baby pictures of the Seniors are always interesting,—also, pictures of the Faculty or the Editorial Board.

Although the year book has been improved in many ways, there is still a great chance for further improvement.

ACHIEVEMENTS OF THE SENIORS IN 4-H CLUB WORK

Among the Seniors there are many outstanding 4-H Club members. More than half the students of the Senior Class are, or have been, members of some 4-H Club.

Every year, 112 boys and girls are chosen to represent Maine at Springfield, Massachusetts. For the past two years the Class of 1931 has sent one delegate, and this year there were two from that class. Hope Fergatto represented us last year, and Lillian McCullough and George Douglas represented us this year. Lillian is a club leader this year; Hope has been a club leader for two years; and George has been assistant club leader for two years.

Our county champions include: Lillian McCullough, Cooking and Housekeeping; Hope Fergatto, Sewing and Canning; George Douglas, Corn and Beans.

The following students are, or have been, club officers: Hope Fergatto, President of Canning Club, Secretary of Cooking Club; George Douglas, President of Club; Ralph Berry, President of Poultry Club; Lillian McCullough, President of Cooking Club; Sidney Pooler, Secretary of Poultry Club.

Another distinction fell to the Seniors when Hope Fergatto was chosen as the outstanding club member of the State and won a trip to the National 4-H Club Congress, held at Chicago.

We believe that there are few classes who can boast of such an honorable record in 4-H Club work.

MANUAL TRAINING

The manual training department is a new institution in Scarborough High School.

There are two classes, the Freshmen and Sophomores, comprising Manual Training I, the Juniors and Seniors, Manual Training II. In these classes there are ten Freshmen, six Sophomores, four Juniors, and nine Seniors. There are additional classes on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday afternoons for the eighth grade boys from different grammar schools.

As a project in Manual Training, the boys, under the direction of Mr. Hallett, made much of the equipment for the workshop, including two hardwood work benches, a tool cabinet, and other small benches for the circular saw, miter saw, and the emery wheel.

Each day of the week is set aside for a different line of work: Monday, for lectures; Tuesday and Thursday, for woodwork; and Wednesday and Friday, for mechanical drawing.

In Manual Training I, small articles for the home, such as table lamps, smoke-stands, and necktie racks, have been made. In Manual Training II, the students have made more difficult articles, such as a drawing board, a desk and chair, and a cedar chest.

This department is very successfully meeting a long-felt need for some form of vocational training for boys.

HIGH LIGHTS OF THE YEAR

The school year of 1930-1931 was a very successful one for Scarborough.

All the athletic teams have been in the first division at the end of the schedule. The outdoor track team took first place, outscoring its nearest opponent, 50-34.

The basketball schedule was larger this year, due to the addition of two teams to the conference. The girls won third place in this sport, and the boys, after tying for first place, lost the championship game to Standish. The boys' team also entered the Lewiston Small Schools' Tournament, where they advanced to the semi-finals before meeting defeat. The swimming team won second place in the annual meet of the Cumberland County Conference at the Y. M. C. A. This year, we had a rifle team and won third place in the Triple C meet. The indoor track team met with great success this year as it got first place, and more than doubled the scores of its opponents.

We met with great success in public speaking when our 1930 representative, Ruth Pillsbury, received first prize in the County Contest and third prize in the State Contest. Another honor came to the school through 4-H Club work when Hope Fergatto represented the State of Maine at the National 4-H Congress, held at Chicago in December, 1930.

Another long-cherished dream of the friends and students of Scarboro High School is being realized as we see the grounds at the front of the building taking permanent form. At the last town meeting the sum of two thousand dollars was voted for the completion of the grading which was begun two years ago, and for the landscaping necessary to give our beautiful building an attractive setting. This sum will be adequate to build the lawn and walks and to set the shrubbery and hedges. A further sum of one-hundred dollars has already been set aside by the Civic League for the purchase of shrubbery. Now that the proper background has been furnished, it would seem to be a very fitting act for each graduating class to add to the sentiment that binds them to their alma mater, either by a gift of shrubbery, vines or trees or some other suitable token of their connection with the school.

FRIDAY MORNING ASSEMBLIES

Assemblies have been held nearly every week throughout the year under the supervision of committees appointed by the Student Council. Many of these have been Pop assemblies for our athletic teams. The most thrilling of these was the one on January 14th, when we celebrated our unexpected victory over Standish High in basketball. On March 23rd, another rousing celebration was held for our Indoor Track team, which had won the Triple C Championship on the previous Saturday.

Other interesting assemblies have been held as follows:

November 10th. Armistice Day Assembly. Speaker, Maj. Edward Anthoine of Portland.

December 15th. Hope Fergatto, '31, gave a fine account of a recent trip to Chicago, where she represented the Maine 4-H Clubs at the National Congress of 4-H Clubs.

January 5th. Mrs. Florence Stevens of the Portland Maine Savings Bank addressed the school on "Wealth."

February 27th. Junior Assembly. The feature number was a duet by Bernice Gerry and Bobby Jensen.

March 10th. Prof. Milton Schlagenhaut of Northeastern University was the speaker, his subject being "Vocational Education."

March 13th. Freshman Assembly. The best of the year. Our youngest class performed like veterans, disclosing all sorts of musical talent.

"Melodrama" .....	Ten Sophomores
"No Trains Today" featuring	Greta Moulton,
	James Small, George Scamman

March 27th. Senior Assembly. The feature performers were Ralph Berry, with his harmonica, and Ted Olesen, with his songs.

April 10th. The Rev. Mr. Wyman of North Scarborough addressed the student body, his subject being "India."

SPECIAL EVENTS

September 15th. School opened with the largest enrollment in the history of the school—one hundred and fifteen registering. A Manual Training Course is now offered.

October 10th. Freshman Reception. The Student Council arranged a very interesting entertainment, consisting of short plays, stunts, and a "Grand Parade." Basketball games between the Freshies and Sophomores. Last, but not least, refreshments. And how the Freshmen did need refreshments!

September 23rd. Election of members of 1931 Student Council. The following officers were elected: President, Daniel Snow, '31; Vice-President, Helen Olesen, '33; Secretary, Barbara Grant, '31; Treasurer, Dorothy Clark, '31; members, Marion Douglass, '32, Stanley Clark, '32, Donald D. Douglas, '32, Sidney Pooler, '31, George Milliken, '33, Ethelyn Pillsbury, '34.

November 19th. A night of "Night School." The complete forenoon session was held in the evening, after which members of the Home Economics classes served a "Noon Lunch" to about seventy-five parents and citizens who were present.

November 25th and 26th. Annual Senior Fair and Drama, "The Heiress Hunters," was given each evening before packed houses. The Seniors realized a profit of one hundred and eighty dollars.

4-H CLUB WORK

About fifty members of Scarboro High School have been members of the five 4-H Clubs which are conducted as a school project.

October 28th. Local 4-H Club Exhibit. A banquet was held at 6 o'clock with county and state officials, leaders and members present. A short entertainment was then given and each club conducted a public demonstration. Mr. Shibles, the state leader, spoke of the trip which the Maine delegation had made to the Eastern States Exposition at Springfield. Three of our club members, Lillian McCullough, George Douglas and Donald Douglas, were members of this delegation.

November 7th. Cumberland County 4-H Banquet and Contest. This was held at the Chamber of Commerce Building in Portland. The Strand Theatre was visited by the entire county delegation, after which a banquet was served at the Y. W. C. A. Two of our members won county championships, Lillian McCullough in Cooking and Housekeeping, and George Douglas in Corn and Bean Growing.

A BEDTIME STORY

The day dawned bright and clear. The Rays of the S-Emerson gleamed over Littlefields of Rice. Although King Frederick was Leary because of a Paine in his head, he finally decided to go hunting. So he groomed himself with unusual care, combed his hair carefully with his New-comb, and put on his new hunting suit for he would probably see Mrs. Hope Anderson, her six year Oleson, who might be out picking Berrys.

As he started out along the road which led by a Pooler water known as the river Jordan, he thought of the wild Lions he would shoot and bring home with him. He had progressed only a Small distance when he saw a side-road, and, pulling on the reins of his horse, decided to Turner into it. To his great surprise, as he rode into this road, he saw a peasant Plowman about to shoot one of his Peacocks.

"Yea, Verrilly, I Saw-yer!" shouted the King.

"Oh, Shaw!" returned the Plowman.

Whereupon, the King Luid-law for him not to shoot any of his birds or De Coste would be great.

Shades of Knight now began to appear and it suddenly grew cold. Snow commenced to fall. As the King had Fergal-to put a Laught-on, he became chilled, and although he had shot no game he decided to return home.

And this is the end of my Storey.

THE HALF HAS NEVER YET BEEN TOLD!

Paine, '34 (in Mathematics I): "Let X equal to the smallest half of the log."

Mr. Bessey: "I've often heard of a better half but which is the smaller half?"

STOP PEEKING!

Miss Rice: "Danny, why is your examination paper covered with quotation marks?"

Danny: "Out of courtesy to Plummer; he sits on my right."

---

NEEDS PRACTICE

N. L., '33: "What do you know? I have lost ten pounds in two weeks from worrying."

H. O., '33: "Yes, I tried that, but I couldn't keep my mind on it."

BORROWED HUMOR

If she gets lost—Finder.
 If you finder—Claimer.
 If it's the wrong one—Returner.
 If she is stubborn—Commander.
 If she falls for you—Lover.
 If she becomes backward—Shover.
 If she should win success—Acclaimor.
 If she confides in you—Adviser.
 If she is willing to learn—Teacher.
 If her heart is heavy—Consoler.
 If she insults you—Fogiver.
 If she falls for another—Eliminator.
 If she denies false words—Believer.
 If she would make a good wife—Gainer.
 If she can't walk—Carrier.
 When she gets old—Protector.

JUST LIKE A TRAFFIC COP!

Miss Rice (in English IV): "You know what a gesture is, don't you?"
 Douglas, '31: "Sure, I ought to. You're my French teacher."

CABBAGES!

Mr. B.: "I've been smoking an awful lot of cigars lately."
 Mr. H.: "If they are anything like the one you gave me last night, I'll agree with you."

ON THE SCARBORO MARSHES

Game Warden: "What do you mean by hunting with last year's license?"
 Smith, '33: "It's all right, boss. I'm only shooting the birds I missed last year."

PUTTEN PUTTEN

Miss Rice was pointing out to the Freshman class the error of adding "en" to a verb when using the past tense. Turning to a sentence on the board she said: "George, what is wrong with the sentence, 'I have putten my book on the table'?"
 Woodward, '34: "You have putten putten where you should have putten put."

TOOT-TOOT!

Turner, '31: "Sure, I'm going to be an aviator. Why, I've been air-minded for years."

Olesen, '31: "Well, I guess I had better work in a garage. I've been tow-headed ever since I was born."

Berry, '31 (in Manual Training): "How can I drive a nail without hitting my fingers?"

Mr. Hallett: "Hold the hammer in both hands."

PHONEY!

Mr. Bessey (speaking on the phone): "You say that Arthur will not be able to attend school today because he has a bad cold? Who is this speaking?"
 Voice (hoarsely): "My father."

A LITERAL TRANSLATION

R. M., '34 (in Freshman Latin, conjugating "ploro" (bewail):
 "I shall be whaled.
 You will be whaled," etc.

OUR BASKET BALL LET-HER-MEN

"Be-you-tea-full" Sno,	lf
"Hough E." Lie-ons,	rf
"Hard Boiled" Ryce,	e
"Is-he?" Keeraig,	lg
D. U. G. Lass,	rg

KNOCK! KNOCK! KNOCK!

Neal Jensen, '32, before the prize speaking contest visited Urquhart's Filling Station and asked:

"Do you sell anti-knock gas?"

"Yes."

"Let me have a pint. I want to rub some on my knees."

THE KING'S ENGLISH

Snow, '31: "Hurry up, fellows, and get them sweat shirts on."

Miss Rice: "Why, Danny—"

Snow: "Oh, well, them perspiration shirts then."

A SARM

"He is my teacher; I shall not pass. He maketh me to go to the board; he compelleth me to do difficult problems. He giveth me zero. He maketh me to sit down for my class's sake.

"Yea, though I study till midnight I will gain no knowledge, for my exponents sorely bother me.

"He preparest a test before me in the presence of my classmates. He giveth me X.

"Surely flunks shall follow me all the days of my life and I shall dwell in the Math. class for ever and ever."—Ex.

DEAD BROKE

Emerson, '33, on the day after he purchased Jensen's Ford was arrested for driving without a license.

Judge: "Have you anything to offer the court before sentence is passed upon you?"

Emerson: "No, your honor. I paid my last and only dollar for the Ford."

HE KNOWS

Mr. B. (in Chemistry): "Do you know anything harder than a diamond?"

Whisper from the back of the room: "Sure, making the payment on one."

POOR BACCHUS

Miss R. in English IV asked D. S. how Bacchus (God of wine and revelry) was always pictured.

He answered promptly: "With a hat on crooked."

PAST AND PRESENT

A. Moulton, '31: "That boy friend you're stepping out with now certainly has a doubtful past."

R. Knight, '31: "Maybe so, but he never calls without bringing a wonderful present."

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Found on Community Civics examinations:

"A good community must always have a scrubbery around it."

"In Maine, all cows must be pasteurized before put in bottles."

Dorothy Clark, a sweet young lass,
Likes to whisper during class,
And though she's caught, it's understood
Warnings don't do her any good.

A FAMILY QUARREL

It was rather warm one day in English IV, so D. S., '31, opened a window. After a short time the room became somewhat chilly and B. H., '31, got up and closed it. Promptly D. S., apparently thinking it still too warm, opened it again. Whereupon the teacher told him to settle his family differences elsewhere.

FINE INDEED

N. J., '32, was in court charged with exceeding the auto speed limit.

"What's the matter with you?" asked the judge. "Didn't you read the signs along the road?"

"Sure," replied Neal. "They read, 'Fine for speeding'!"

AN AFTER-DINNER STORY

Heard at the Moulton House when Lib came to dine:

G. M., '33: "I'm going to give you a piece of my mind."

Lib: "Just a small helping, please."

HOME BREW

Mr. B. (in Commercial Law): "Can a hotel proprietor refuse to admit a guest to his hotel if full?"

Turner, '32: "Which do you mean, the hotel keeper, the guest, or the hotel?"

"ALPHABET" LYONS

O. F., '31: "Hasn't Howie Lyons won a letter in every school sport?"

R. M., '31: "In all except one."

O. F.: "And what is that?"

R. M.: "In girls' basketball."

O. F.: "Oh, well, he's still got a chance. He's only a Junior."

Emma Jenkins is rather petite.
She's tall and dark and very neat,
Now you know why the boys all fall.
For Emma's looks are her beck and call.

A FIRM FOUNDATION

Muzzy Shaw: "What would you do if you were in my shoes?"

Liz Shaw: "I'd try to get a pair about four sizes smaller."

SANTA CLAUS

B. G., '31: "Did Dan really give you a ring Xmas?"

B. H., '31: "Yes, about ten-thirty in the morning. He said he'd be down for dinner."

English teacher: "Parse the word 'kiss'."

E. C., '32: "It is a noun, but it is usually used as a conjunction. It is never declined and more common than proper. It is not very singular, in that it is usually used in the plural. It agrees with me."

AT LAST

J. S., '33, and his father were driving to school. When they started, Mr. S. told James to tell him if he should see a motorcop coming up behind. The car gradually crept up to thirty, forty, fifty, sixty, seventy miles an hour. Then, very sophisticatedly, James drawled slowly, "Father, the man you were expecting is here."

HERE'S ONE

Miss R. (in French III, speaking to A. M., '31, who had just had her hair bobbed): "Où est vos chevaux?"

IN AND OUT

Mrs. L. (in Latin III): "Exit comes from exitum. What is the exit of a theatre?"

Craig, '32: "An entrance to go out."

HOT STUFF!

Mr. B. (in Math. I): "Now, Miss King, you should remember that each equation has a story in its statements. Will you make up a story from the statements on the board?"

J. K., '34: "You had better ask Dot Smith. She can tell better stories than I can, and such stories!"

"DEATH TAKES A HOLIDAY"

It was Christmas Eve and everything was still. Out in the barren wastes of No-man's land a green light blinked twice. Immediately from the other side an answering light blinked. There was a sound of many footsteps, and fourteen men came into view. They wore the uniforms of the German Air Corps. Three men stepped out of the darkness to meet them. These had on the colors of America's flying service. Without a word they all turned and started off, the fourteen men following the other three.

After a walk of about five minutes they drew up before an old, battered farmhouse. Voices could be heard inside but no lights showed outside the building. The group entered and all sat down at a table. On one side were the men wearing the cross of Germany and on the other, those bearing the eagle of Uncle Sam. Here they ate, drank, and, after they had had their fill, smoked, and swapped stories. This afternoon they had been at one another's throats, sending each other down to death in flaming planes. Tomorrow it would be the same. But tonight was Christmas Eve. Death was taking a holiday.

THE PAPER BRINGERS

It was a still, hot day in August. Dust lay heavy in the air. The sea was calm. Far out from the lonely island a boat could be seen moving swiftly toward the island. The boat, leaving a wide wake in its path, approached and grounded on a small beach. Two men disembarked.

"Ahoy!" cried the larger of the two men. "Here are papers for you!"

In answer to the cry, a man clad in goatskin, and a woman, small and pretty, advanced to the bundle that had been dropped on the beach.

"Remember what I have told you," said the larger man to the small one. "Do not shake hands with either of them." The small one assented with a nod.

The young couple grabbed the papers. The man in goatskin spoke. "Thank you! You are a Godsend!" he said.

"Well, good-bye. We must go now," answered the large man.

After the island was out of sight and there was nothing in view but the sea, the young man broke the silence impetuously. "Why in Heaven's name do that man and woman stay on that island all alone, and why did you tell me not to shake hands with them?"

"Leprosy," briefly answered the large man.

ANGRY SEAS

It was my first long voyage abroad. I had always had a strange terror of the sea, but I wanted to visit the European countries, and this could not be done without crossing the Atlantic. I had fallen heir to a large fortune and so decided to go to Europe. My chum, Jean Spenser, was traveling with me and she was the best company I could possibly have chosen. We were traveling first class and our cabin had everything in it to make us comfortable.

The first two days I spent in perfect agony. If you have ever been seasick I need not say any more. Jean, who was a sweet, jolly sort of girl, kept me as cheerful as possible, and, although she wouldn't own up to it, I knew she didn't feel so well herself. The third day was bright and sunny, so we spent most of our time on deck in company with the rest of the passengers. Everything was blue, above and beneath us, and only a passing steamer bound for good old United States broke up the monotony of our surroundings. That night we went to bed, tired and happy, knowing we only had one more day and night on the steamer.

In the morning I awoke to see the rain pouring through my window. Jean was still asleep, so I got up to close the window. The wind blew the rain into my face so that I was drenched before I could shut it, and when it did go down, it went with a crash. At this Jean awoke with a start. I started toward her and just then the boat gave a lurch and I went tumbling across the floor. I caught hold of the edge of her bunk and regained my feet. We both realized, with sickening horror, that we had run into a storm. We managed to get dressed, somehow, and started out on deck, but were met with such a gale and down-pour that we dared not venture any further. Our stewardess came in and told us not to leave our cabin. Jean and I just sat and stared at each other with white faces and clenched hands. Our breakfast, which the stewardess had brought us, was left untouched, and before long a lurch of the boat sent it crashing to the floor. I could hear nothing but the roar of the angry waves which tossed the ship about as if it were a mere chip. Jean and I tried to cheer each other up and to forget the storm, but each lurch of the ship brought us a new horror. Suddenly my cabin door burst in and a shipman sprang in. He told us to keep our heads and do as he told us. I heard him say something about the ship sinking. I felt sick with terror but I tried to do as he told me while he fastened us into life preservers. We clung to each other as he hurried us on deck. I saw the waves toss about those little lifeboats filled with screaming women and children, as they rolled and tipped over. We clung desperately to each other while we were lowered into a boat filled with horror-stricken beings. I felt Jean beside me holding me tight. My head was in a whirl while we tossed about. The shipman pulled with all his strength to get us away before the steamer should sink and pull us down with it. The rain was still coming down in torrents. I had only one comforter besides Jean and raising my eyes to Heaven I asked God for help. Just then a great wave swept over us with a roar, and with a horror which sickened my very soul, I felt myself sinking, sinking. I caught someone's hand as I went down and we sank together. When I came up to the surface my breath was nearly exhausted. I grasped a floating log and clung to it with all my strength. To my great relief I found that it was Jean whose hand I was holding and that she was grasping the log with all her might. Then I felt my strength giving away, and everything went black before me.

When I came to again, the sun was shining and Jean was sitting beside my bed, saying, "It's all right, honey, just lie still and don't try to talk while I tell you all about it."

"THE SPIDER"

He looked at the clock. It was just three quarters of an hour after midnight—just fifteen minutes more! The "Spider," leader of the most notorious gang of the underworld of Chicago, the "Spiderweb," peered forth from the darkened window down into the street below.

He was not a large man but very powerful and feared very much by his gang. So great was the awe and fear with which the "Spiderweb" regarded him, that not one of its members dared to look him straight in the face. A close scrutiny of his face showed that he was cunning, shrewd, and quick-witted. He was far from being handsome; his eyes were small and squinty; his nose, like a bill, was very steep and upon approaching his mouth, curved sharply to the left like a detour at the foot of a steep incline; his right ear, ragged and bitten, resembled a cauliflower. A somewhat torn and bedraggled cap half-covered his homely face. An unlighted cigarette hung loosely between his lips.

Ten minutes passed slowly by. The "Spider" once more peered down into the street. This time he seemed satisfied, for a car had drawn up before the house. Taking a whistle from his pocket, he placed it to his lips and blew three times. He was answered almost immediately.

At exactly one o'clock the car, containing the "Spider" and his gang, stopped before a large bank on an almost deserted street in Chicago; at quarter past one it was all over, and the "Spider" and his gang were speeding towards their headquarters.

The next morning when the watchman entered the bank, the first thing he saw perched on top of the safe was a silver spider in a silver web.

ORPHEUS AND EURYDICE

SPECIAL—TONITE ONLY—THE MAGIC SAXOPHONE PLAYER—flashed in red lights across the front of the largest night club in New York. The name of Orpheus, "The Magic Saxophone Player," was on everyone's tongue. How different his music was!—jazz numbers, but they could certainly draw the crowds.

The dance floor was packed. As the last strains of his solo died away, the handsome youth lowered his instrument. There, right in front of him, stood the most beautiful girl he had ever seen. How he could write songs about—her! He stood staring at her like a marble statue, with thousands of questions coming to his mind—What was her name? Where had she been all his life?—Then like a flash she was gone.

For weeks he searched for her. Though he still continued to charm the crowds, he was playing now just for her; writing songs about her hair, her eyes, and even her fingers and toes. Then one night he found her. She was more beautiful even than she had been that first night. He determined never to lose her again. But he found that it was not so easy to win this young lady, the capricious and beautiful Eurydice. Charmed by his music, however, she finally consented to marry him.

A happy young couple they were, "the Magic Saxophone Player" and his charming, laughing bride. Then one day Eurydice was suddenly taken sick, and before Orpheus could reach her, she died.

Orpheus became so sad that his charm vanished. He determined to win back his Eurydice, so he flew up to Jupiter but received no help from him. His first plan having failed, he hopped into his limousine, took his saxophone, and started for the Underworld. When he came to Cerberus, the three-headed dog, he began to play a very dreamy waltz, and soon all three heads were asleep. Leaving his car at the gate beside the sleeping Cerberus, he started on his way to Pluto.

He was now in the Underworld! How dark and gloomy it seemed! He searched with his flashlight in all the dark corners, trying to find his beloved. Everyone he met he played for and left them all behind him, dancing and whistling the latest tunes of the day. At last he came to Pluto, but when he saw his hard, stern face peering at him through the shadows, he began to lose faith in the charm of his saxophone. However, mastering all the courage he could, he began to play—sad melodies at first until the sooty tears began to roll down the red face of Pluto. Then he changed his tune and played jazz numbers until he had the "King of the Underworld" laughing and tapping his feet beneath his royal robes.

Thinking himself welcome, Orpheus pleaded that he might lead Eurydice with him back to Earth. Pluto, now in high spirits, granted his request on the one condition that he should not once turn and look at his wife.

Orpheus agreed. Taking his wife by the hand, he started toward the gate, whistling merrily, "Walking my baby back home." But he had not gone far when he began to grow moody. What if Eurydice had grown pale, dark-colored, and old, after staying in such a gloomy place? What if she had lost forever her red cheeks, her curly hair, and shining eyes? Forgetting his promise he looked at her, only to see her vanish into the darkness.

He had had his chance and had lost. He now planned to go away from everyone. At last he settled down in a little old town, way up in the State of Maine. He lived only for his music, his sad and mournful plaints to Enrydice. One day some farmers chanced his way, and hearing the sound of music, stopped. They were giving a barn dance and they begged him to play for them. He consented, but his old charm had gone. He started to play a popular fox trot, but it sounded so mournful that the dancers fell upon him and tore him limb from limb and threw him into a nearby river. As he floated down the river his lips formed the word "Enrydice."

PENALTY

Gordon Blair waited in his cell for the last eight minutes of his life to pass. He reviewed the incidents of that night a month ago. He thought of the careful plans which the chief had laid for robbing the warehouse; of how, at the last moment, somebody had squealed on the gang and had had the police waiting; of how he had tried to escape through a back window but had been stopped by a burly individual in a blue uniform. He seemed to hear again the report of his own revolver; to feel himself looking again at the white face of the dead policeman. He had had need to hurry; he had not even had time to go home for one last "good-bye" to his young wife, Joan, and Joyce, his little daughter.

In spite of his precautions he had been caught and brought to the prison under heavy guard. They had come to see him the day after his arrest, Joan with her tear-stained face, and little Joyce, not understanding what everything was all about. She had even cried a little, in fear of some of the rough-looking prisoners.

His thoughts were suddenly interrupted by the heavy tread of the prison officials coming toward his cell. After a prayer by the chaplain, Gordon Blair was led down the corridor and through a small door at the end, leaving his life and all his memories behind him.

GUINEVERE

The night was still, except for a light breeze. The palace garden was flooded with the silvery, mystic light of the moon, but the old castle itself stood there gray and dismal. Everyone in it had been asleep for some time, save one, who, as the moonbeams streamed through the window and played about the room, was rising from her bed.

Outside the palace wall a peasant boy stood marveling and dreaming as he looked at it. He was thinking, too, how gloomy it all was when slowly, up on a balcony, the richly draped doors opened and a woman stepped out, all clothed in white, immediately transforming the castle from gloom to beauty. He pinched himself to see if he was awake. Yes, he was, and this beautiful creature he saw was the queen, for who could be more beautiful than a queen?

Guinevere stood there with arms outstretched and head held high. Her long, golden hair was stirred now and then by the breeze, but even this had a quiet dignity in the queen. The expression on her face the boy could not see, but it was just as well, for he would not have understood it. At first it held a sad, far away look and tears came to her eyes, but before they could fall the expression changed into one of strong determination for Guinevere was always queen.

Finally she turned and entered the room again. The heavily draped doors were closed, leaving outside them the astonished but very happy peasant boy.

A GAME WITH DEATH

Nancy Dean lived with her two aunts. She was a favorite of her old schoolmaster, Martin Gray. It was well known that he had an unusual dislike for women, but little Nancy, by her talent in her school work, became a good friend of his.

One day Nancy was sent for. Rumors were that Mr. Gray was on his deathbed. It was thought that because the poor old gentleman could not have his school the next year and so would be lonely in his old age, that Death would be his best friend.

Nancy went to Mr. Gray's house, accompanied by her two aunts, Mary Ann and Martha Ann. The little girl stayed by the bedside but he informed Aunt Mary Ann that he didn't want any women folks crying around him and that she had better go to the kitchen.

Once in a while Martha Ann would tip-toe into his room. Mr. Gray seemed unconscious of these visits, but when she went out he would slowly open his eyes and wink at Nancy. To her horror she found herself winking back. Deathbed winks! How scandalous!

Later Aunt Martha Ann came into the room and stated, in a very solemn whisper, that Mr. Gray could not die until the tide went out. The patient lifted his voice very loud and clear, saying, "Get out of here with your superstition. I'll die when I please, tide or no tide!"

Time went on quietly in the room. Nancy felt that she should be afraid and dread such a thing as death, but Mr. Gray made it seem like a real lark, and told her he was going on a vacation.

At last the sick man opened his eyes and spoke, rather thickly this time, "Open the door—Death must not be kept waiting. Glad you were with me, little sport."

Aunt Martha came to the doorway and said, "At last the tide has turned—he has gone out with it."

Mr. Gray struggled to produce a wink. He could nearly fool death.

THE LOVE OF BOBBY JONES

There was a youth named Bobby Jones,
 And he was wondrous fair;
 But ne'er had his heart leaped in his breast,
 Until he saw Ruth Clair.

Now Ruth was sweet and good and true,
 And beautiful to see;
 As Bobby gazed at her, he thought,
 "Is there a chance for me?"

Then came the Sabbath, clear and bright,
 When all the bells did peal;
 And Bobby hied him to the church,
 And so met his ideal.

Thro' the long meeting Bobby sat,
 His heart ached all the while;
 For though he looked oft at sweet Ruth,
 She gave not him a smile.

Fast flew the long, long winter months;
 Came spring with smiling skies;
 And looking up poor Bobby sighed,
 And thought of Ruth Clair's eyes.

Then one romantic moonlight night,
 All quiet as a mouse,
 Eob jumped into his Oldsmobile
 And hied him to her house.

When in the garden by Ruth's house
 They stood 'neath stars above;
 Young Eobby sighed, and in one breath
 Poured forth his tale of love.

Soon came the merry month of May;
 In the church on the hillside
 Young Bobby Jones took unto him
 Ruth Clair as his fair bride.

And so, young lads and lassies gay,
 When blue are skies above,
 Beware of spring and wedding bells,
 Heed not the call of love.

THE GHOST WALK

After dark when all is still
 And everyone's asleep,
 The moon shines down and stars come out,
 And ghosts begin to creep.

Especially on Hallowe'en,
 When ghosts and spirits reign,
 The people go inside 'fore dark
 And don't come out again.

But when the cock crows loud and long
 At the first gray peep of dawn,
 All mortals sigh with great relief—
 Another night has gone.

At Christmas time when all is bright
 With happy cheer and song,
 The spirits dare not venture out,
 For the cock crows all night long.

Beware, all people, and take heed;
 If ways of ghosts ye ken,
 You'll not go walking after dark—
 You may ne'er return again.

THE SEASHORE IN WINTER

The sky in the distance so misty and gray,
 The lighthouse can hardly be seen,
 And, ah, if only a single ray
 Would come from the sun on such a day.

The great white gulls are flying high,
 Huge green waves break on the shore,
 Then, again, they die away,
 And fast they come with louder roar.

The bare, black branches twist and toss,
 The wind is screaming wildly,
 It seems only for a loss,
 To venture near this seashore.

And yet I love to watch the waves,
 As higher and higher they tower,
 I will be one of the brave
 And wander to this seashore.

A WAYSIDE BEGGAR

A stranger sat by the wayside,
 Begging for money each day;
 His clothes were worn and ragged,
 His hair was tinted with gray.

His face looked tired and discouraged
 As he watched each passerby,
 And when anyone dropped a coin,
 He smiled with an eager eye.

It was snowing and bitterly cold outside,
 The man shivered and shook,
 And the people were scurrying homeward,
 Not giving him even a look.

Look! someone was going toward him,
 A man with a kindly face;
 He took the beggar home with him,
 Said his wife would fix him a place.

The beggar following behind him,
 Was thanking him all the way;
 Said he was so thankful
 To have a place to stay.

Next day the man gave him some money,
 And found him some work to do;
 The beggar man was happy now,
 And so was the other man, too.

THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER

I have a mouth, yet do not eat,
 I have a bed, yet do not sleep.
 I have no legs and yet I run.
 I am many put into one.
 I have a temper very strong,
 It rises highest in a storm.
 When I reach my highest rage,
 They have to put me in a cage,
 And yet I break the bars, and go;
 Just now I started to,—you know.
 After all I'm not a shirk;
 I help the people do their work.
 If some scenery you wish to see,
 Come, I beg, and look at me.

SCARBORO'S CHEER LEADER

Scarboro had a good cheer leader,
 They sat him on a rail,
 He sang some songs for Scarboro
 And whistled like a quail.

He cried, Rah! Rah! and yelled aloud,
 He was heard all over town,
 He did a series of stunts
 And acted like a clown.

He then sat up Scarboro's players
 With three great Rah's!
 Attached to every player's name,
 And gave a jump toward Mars.

He then razzed the opposing team,
 He looked like the sun,
 Hurrah for dear old Scarboro,
 For S. H. S. had won.

ATHLETICS

This past year Scarboro High has engaged in every sport that the schools of this vicinity enter into, with the exception of cross-country and baseball. We have had a very successful year, our achievements being: first in outdoor and indoor track; second in boys' basketball and swimming; third in the rifle meet and girls' basketball. We have entered the league for baseball and for girls' outdoor track. Archery for girls will also be introduced this spring.

OUTDOOR TRACK

The third annual Triple C outdoor track meet was held on May 13, 1930, at the Deering High School athletic field. Scarboro won, amassing 50 points.

Lyons, '32, was high scorer, with 19 $\frac{3}{4}$  points.

The results of the meet were as follows:

100-yd. Dash—(1) Ferguson, Scarboro; (2) Montague, Greely; (3) Randall, Windham.

Mile Run—(1) Lyons, Scarboro; (2) McAllister, Freeport; (3) Cobb, Windham.

Shot Put—(1) Dalrymple, Freeport; (2) Randall, Windham; (3) Pride, Windham. Distance 39 ft., 5 in. (New Record.)

440-yd. Run—(1) Ferguson, Scarboro; (2) Snow, Scarboro; (3) Tuttle, Freeport.

880-yd. Run—(1) Lyons, Scarboro; (2) Tuttle, Freeport; (3) Craig, Scarboro.

Pole Vault—(1) Snow, Scarboro; (2) Lyons, Scarboro; (3) DeWeoner, Freeport. 9 ft.

Javelin Throw—(1) Ferguson, Scarboro; (2) Dalrymple, Freeport; (3) Rice, Scarboro. Distance: 122 ft., 6 in.

Discus Throw—(1) Dalrymple, Freeport; (2) Randall, Windham; (3) Shaw, Greely. Distance: 94 ft., 6 in. (New Record.)

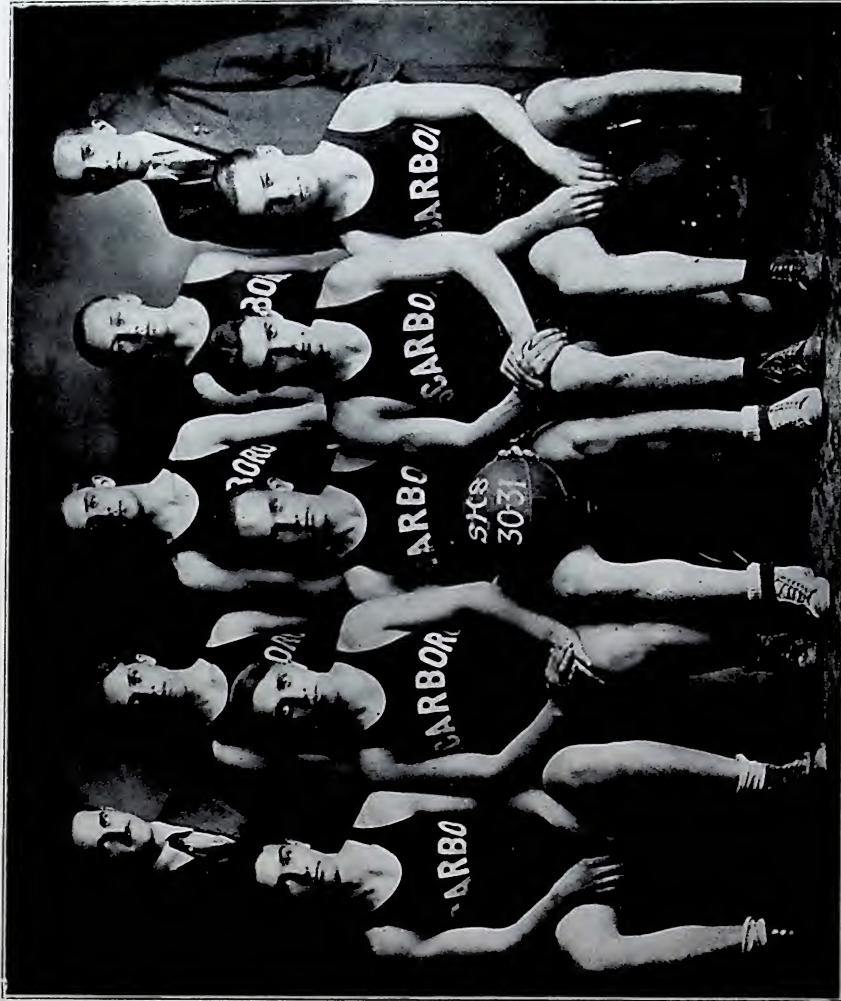

Broad Jump—(1) Lyons, Scarboro; (2) Tuttle, Freeport; (3) Montague, Greely. Distance: 17 ft., 5 in.

High Jump—(1) Tuttle, Freeport; (2) Rice, Scarboro; (3) Ferguson, Scarboro. Height: 4 ft., 11 in.

Relay—(1) Freeport, (2) Scarboro, (3) Greely.

BOYS' BASKETBALL TEAM

Front Row: Emerson, Douglas, Capt. Snow, Rice, Lyons.
Back Row: Coach Hallett, Milliken, Craig, Clark, Mgr. Pooler.

BASKETBALL (Boys)

The coaching of the boys' basketball team was carried on this year by Mr. Hallett, former coach at the Groveton High School, New Hampshire.

We had only two of last year's regulars, Snow, '31, and Rice, '32, at the beginning of the year. Coach Hallett soon had a team working together, consisting of Snow, '31, and Craig, '32, forwards; Rice, '32, center; Scamman, '33, and Douglas, '31, guards. The substitutes were Pooler, '31, Jordan, '32, Clark, '32, Milliken, '32, and Emerson, '33. We were all very glad to welcome back Lyons, who was a forward on our champion 1930 team, at the end of the first term.

Although our regular season was larger than usual, consisting of sixteen games, our team was more successful than last year, winning fifteen of these. Our one defeat in the Triple C League was at the hands of Standish High, on our own floor. However, as we had given Standish their only defeat in a spectacular game on their floor, we tied with them for the championship. We were defeated in a play-off at the Portland Y. M. C. A., making our regular record consist of 15 wins and 2 losses, the best record in the history of the school.

We were chosen to enter the Lewiston Small Schools' Tournament, in which we won our preliminary game from South Paris High, our last year's rivals in the finals, by a score of 34 to 21. We were defeated in the semi-finals by Livermore Falls High, 20 to 10.

BASKETBALL (Girls)

Although we had but four veteran players available at the beginning of the basketball season, we have had a very successful season, our record consisting of nine victories, three defeats, and one tie game. Only two teams succeeded in winning from us, these being Gorham High and Windham High, the winner and the runner-up of the Triple C League. In one thing we are sure that we have not been excelled, and that is in good sportsmanship, whether in victory or defeat.

Our regular team this year consisted of Helen Seamman, '31, and Gertrude De-Coste, '31, forwards; Marguerite Shaw, '31, and Elizabeth Shaw, '31, centers; and Barbara Harmon, '31, and Ruth Verrill, '34, guards. Our captain was our ever sensational left forward, Helen Seamman, who has held this same position for three years, as has her team-mate, "Trudie" De-Coste. "Barb" Harmon has played as guard for the past four years and has proved to be one of our outstanding players in every game. "Muzzy" Shaw and "Bridget" Shaw have shown splendid teamwork in the center area. The remaining guard position has been capably filled by "Very" Verrill, a Freshman.

Our substitutes have been Helen Olesen, '33, forward; Florence Ray, '33, guard; Greta Moulton, '33, and Leona Golding, '34, centers. Our second team has consisted of all Freshmen—Dorothy Plowman, Ruth MacMillan, Edith McCullough, Dorothy Smith, Elizabeth Bennett, Anna Leavitt and Dorothy Ahlquist. We expect to see them win the championship of the League some day.

Our record is as follows:

RIFLE MEET

A new event in the history of the Triple C Conference was the starting this year of an annual rifle meet. It was held on February 28, 1931, at the Portland Y. M. C. A. Yarmouth High, a new member of the Conference, won the championship shield by having better marksmen. Pennell Institute won second place by a one-point margin. Each school had five men on the firing line and the scores of the three highest marksmen counted.

Our team consisted of Capt. Pooler, '31, Douglas, '31, Rice, '32, Smith, '33, and Seamman, '33.

AS OTHERS SEE US

From The Crescent — "We like your cuts, we like your jokes, we like your poetry, too; in fact, we like the whole paper."

From The P. I. H. S. Ship — "An extremely interesting paper. The Literarys are good."

From The Olympian — "Your generous poetic contributions show that you have some talented students in your school."

From The Crimson Rambler — "You have a very interesting paper."

From The Sachem — "The department headings are great."

From The Nautilus — "Your jokes are original and the whole paper is interesting."

AS WE SEE OTHERS

The Olympian, Biddeford High School. You have an excellent Literary Department. Your book reviews present something new.

The Crescent, Samuel D. Hanson High School. We admire your spirit to "Carry On" so well after the loss of your school.

The M. F. H. S. Pilot, Mechanic Falls High School. Glad to welcome you to our Exchange list. Your stories are excellent.

The Amaracus, Monmouth Academy. We like the sentiment expressed by your Exchange editor. Hope you will exchange papers with us regularly.

The Corona, Bridgton High School. Why not have an Exchange Department?

The Oceanic, Old Orchard High School. One of our most eagerly looked for exchanges.

The Live Wire, Newport High School. Our compliments to the author of "A House of Happiness."

The Medomak Breeze, Waldoboro High School. Don't forget us this year. Each department worked out very well.

The Pointer, Kimball High School. For a small school, publishing your own paper, you show lots of pep.

The Sachem, Old Town High School. Probably our best exchange this year. The pictures add a great deal.

The Nautilus, West Paris High School. Your cuts are outstanding.

The Crimson Rambler, Standish High School. Due to our great rivalry this year in basketball, we feel particularly interested in your school and are looking forward eagerly to the 1931 edition of your paper.

The Gatherer, McKinley High School. Although this is the first year we have received your paper, we hope it won't be the last.

The Greely Annual, Greely Institute. We always enjoy reading your paper very much.

The Windonian, Windham High School. Your generous use of cuts makes your paper especially attractive.

We have also enjoyed receiving several publications of The Echo, South Portland High, The Red and White, Sanford High, and of The Bates Student, Bates College.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

On November 15, 1929, the members of the classes of 1925, 1926, and 1927 held a joint reunion at the Scarboro High School. The purpose of the meeting was to organize a new Alumni Association. The officers who were elected were: President, Mary Pederson, '27; Vice-President, Walter Sargent, '25; and Secretary-Treasurer, Gertrude Sherwood, '27.

On January 31, 1930, another meeting was held and a constitution was adopted. Mrs. Ralph Libbey accepted the position of faculty adviser.

On June 16, 1930, an Alumni Banquet was held at the Moulton House, Dunstan. About one hundred were present and the members of the graduating class of 1930 were invited guests. It was voted to make this occasion an annual event. Officers of the Association were elected as follows: President, Amy Willman, '25; Vice-President, Walter Seavey, '95; Secretary, Eleanor Wright, '16; Treasurer, Harold Bennett, '23.

The Association voted to award Alumni prizes to the boy and girl of the Class of 1931 whose school records shall meet certain requirements to be formulated by Mrs. Ralph Libbey and Mr. Elwood Bessey, details of which will be reported at the 1931 banquet.
